What exactly is Fondo.com?

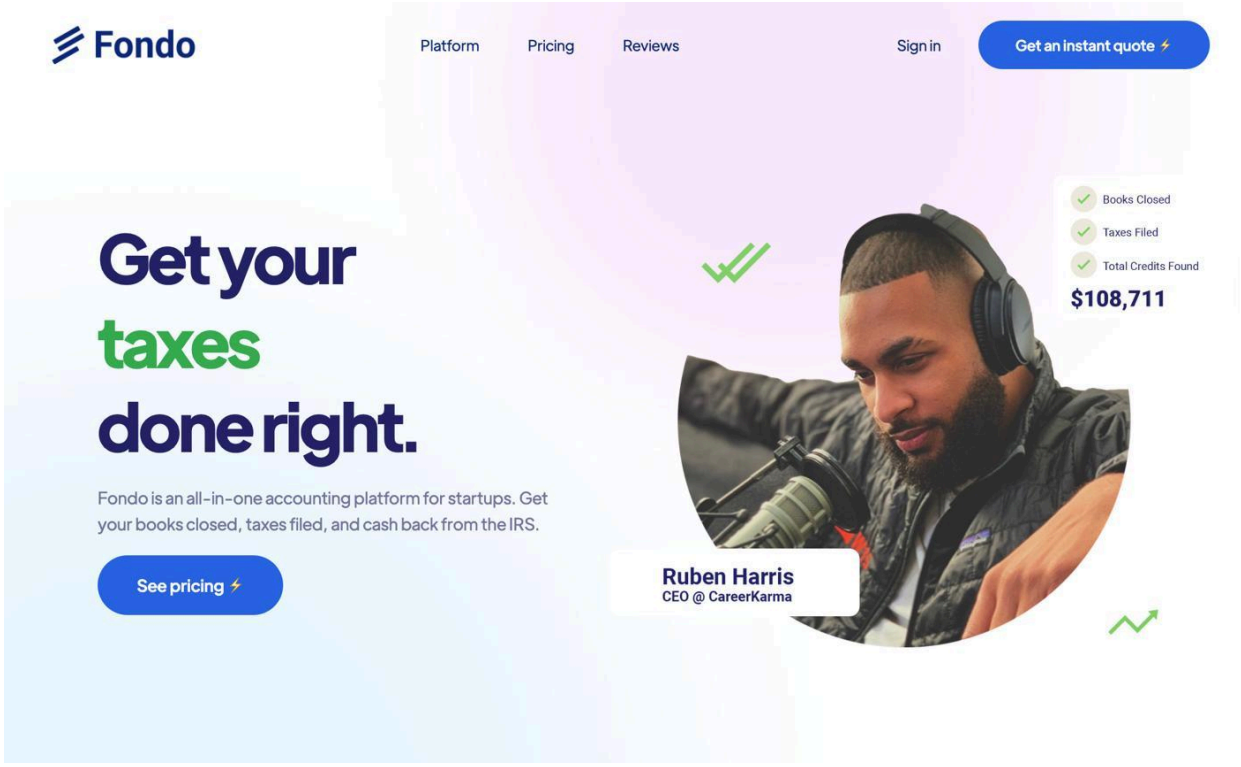

Imagine you start a small company. You sell a product, earn money, pay employees, buy things, and pay taxes.

Now imagine you have to do all the paperwork yourself. You must keep track of every rupee or dollar, calculate taxes, and make sure you don't run out of money.

It's a lot of work, right?

Fondo is a service that helps startup companies manage their money, accounting, and taxes, with the help of software and real accountants. This lets business owners focus on growing their companies instead of worrying about financial paperwork.

1. Let's understand with a simple example

Imagine you own a small company called Akash's Toy Company.

Your company earns $10,000 in one month.

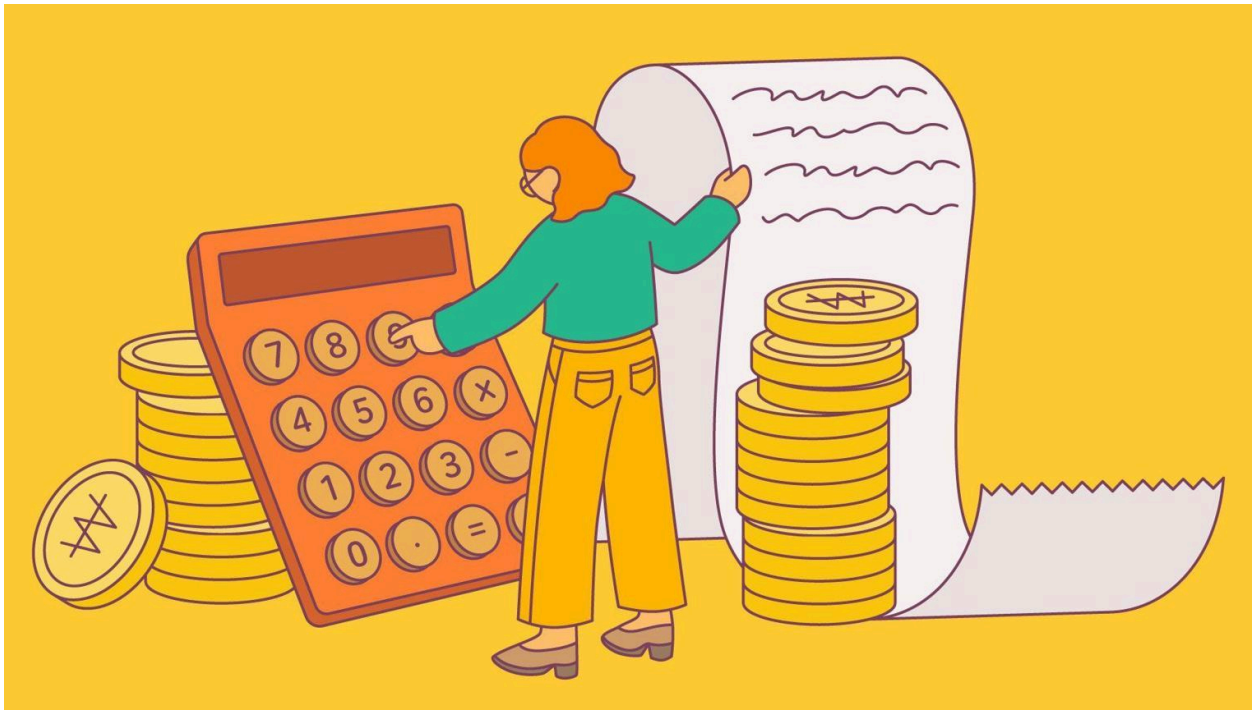

You spend money on salaries, rent, computers, and other expenses. You also need to pay taxes.

Fondo helps you organize all these things.

Step 1: Track your money

Fondo organizes how much money comes in and how much goes out.

Step 2: Organize your accounts

It helps record sales, salaries, bills, and other expenses correctly.

Step 3: Handle taxes

Its accounting team helps prepare and file the company's required taxes.

Step 4: Understand business health

The owner can see financial reports and understand how long the company's money may last.

These are the main services Fondo offers, combining technology with professional accounting support.

2. What are Fondo's main features?

1. Bookkeeping

Think of it as a money diary for a company. It records income and expenses and creates financial reports.

2. Tax filing

Like a teacher helping you complete your homework, Fondo's experts help the company prepare and submit its tax paperwork on time.

3. R&D tax credits

If a company spends money developing new technology, it may qualify for certain tax benefits. Fondo helps eligible startups identify and claim them.

4. Financial reports

The owner can understand how much money the company has, how much it spends, whether it is profitable, and how long its cash might last.

3. Who actually uses Fondo?

Fondo is mainly designed for startup founders and growing technology companies, particularly US companies incorporated as Delaware C-Corporations.

For example:

- A startup founder who doesn't want to manage accounting alone.

- A technology company that needs to file corporate taxes.
- A startup preparing financial reports for investors.
- A company that wants help claiming eligible R&D tax credits.

It isn't primarily designed for ordinary people who just want to manage their personal savings.

5. Now, imagine you're the UI/UX designer working on Fondo

When you look at the website from a design perspective, the main goal is to communicate:

- Less manual work: The company doesn't have to handle every accounting task itself.
- Peace of mind: Professionals help take care of financial responsibilities.

- Financial clarity: The owner can understand the company's financial position.
- Time savings: The founder gets more time to focus on the actual business.

The product's core promise is essentially: You build your business; Fondo helps take care of the numbers.

In one sentence: Fondo is like a combination of an accountant, a tax expert, and a financial tracking system for startups, brought together in one service.
